

THE SAME OLD SONG

By LoCarB ....(As channeled by Lorenzo Caricchio Bro)

I'm sick of hearin' the same old song:
That the Left is right and the Right is wrong.
Then the Right has a verse they sing loud and clear that the Left is godless, lazy and queer
The President sings a tune all his own and tosses both Wall Street mobs another bone.

The song's rhythm is all out of time
The lyrics and reasoning don't even rhyme
There's no harmony or counterpoint, to the melody
Just chorus after chorus of: "Me! Me! Me! Me!"
Join the choir and sing along in the shower
"We're right! We'll fix it! Just give us all the power."

It's the same old tired refrain
"The other side ain't got no brain"
Then they sing each other's part
"The other guy ain't got no heart"
They both sing it loud "We can end all this strife"
"Just give us complete control of your life"

A lot of people buy into that music
But it's not the kinda tune that I'd pick
It takes a solid arrangement set my soul free
Like the old standard "My country 'tis of thee"
A land of sweet liberty, with or without all the bling
That's the kinda song I'd like to sing.

But the choir takes it again from the top
Singing the same old political Hip-Hop
They don't even give it a try
To read the notes through the other guys eye
Louder and louder they sing their song
Gotta face up to their music it won't be long
